DJSN and ILO hold a discussion on the Pension Guarantee Scheme in Indonesia

Jakarta – The National Social Security Council (DJSN) held discussions with the international Labor Organization (ILO) regarding a study of the results of financial analysis of employment social security, especially pension security in Indonesia, Thursday 22 July 2022.

The study conducted by the ILO aims to provide input to the Indonesian government as a whole to look at and find an ideal pension security system

"Presenting options that could become recommendations for reforming pension security in Indonesia," said ILO Country Office for Indonesia Ippei Tsuruga

DJSN members represented by Iene Muliati and Indra Budi Sumantoro appreciated the study conducted by the ILO and its aims and objectives to provide recommendations to the Indonesian Government to improve the implementation of Pension Guarantee in Indonesia

"However, this input must of course also pay attention to the social, economic and political conditions of the country in the year concerned as well as in the years to come, paying attention to the potential risks of each option and linking them with other social security (apart from pension security), as well as paying attention to the mitigation potential, " explained lene
